EUROPEAN BUSINESS SCHOOLS 2024 RANKING

EADA Business School, once again among the top 30 best European business schools

- The Barcelona business schools' cluster is back on the podium of the best destinations for executive training, in addition to Paris and London.
- EADA advances in its global position after a year of consecutive improvements in the rankings that make up this ranking.

Barcelona, December 2, 2024. Once again, EADA Business School has consolidated its privileged position among the most important European business schools, ranking 27th (30th in the previous edition) according to the ranking of European business schools published today, Monday, by the prestigious Financial Times.

Considered the most complete ranking of all those carried out by the Financial Times, this ranking is established by averaging the classification of the various specific rankings carried out throughout the year and which refer to the different programs offered by the schools: MBA, EMBA, Master in Management, Open Executive Education and Custom Programmes. In all of them, the Financial Times requires as an essential condition the academic accreditation EQUIS or that issued by the AACSB.

“We celebrate this improvement in position in the ranking in a year in which we have achieved excellent results in all the rankings and which have had a positive impact on the general position of our institution. All of this reinforces our global recognition in a context with a greater number of competitors, some of them with long prestige and a century-old tradition,” says Jordi Díaz, Dean and Director General of EADA Business School.

Indeed, during 2024, EADA has consolidated its presence in all the Financial Times rankings, which evaluate the different program categories: #94 in the world with its International MBA, #41 in the world with its Master in Finance, #36 in the world with its Master in Management, #16 in the world in Executive Education in open programmes, #46 in custom programmes and, now, position #27 among the best business schools in Europe.

EADA Business School Barcelona was founded in 1957 by a group of businessmen and professionals as an independent institution, both ideologically and economically. Recognized by the main international rankings such as the Financial Times and The Economist, it has the global accreditations EQUIS and AMBA, which recognize the quality of its MBA programs. The Leading What Matters manifesto defines the purpose of EADA Business School.
